Located in the southeast of Europe on the Balkan Peninsula, Montenegro is one of the smallest countries on the continent, rich in diverse landscapes, tradition, history, and people that make it unique. Through this brochure, we will try to portray the charms of rural life and Montenegrin households.

Podgorica is the capital, while Cetinje, due to its rich historical significance, holds the title of the old royal capital. Montenegro has about 622,000 inhabitants and has an area of 13,812 km². It can boast of its ideal geographical position and magnificent landscapes, perfectly described by the slogan "Wild Beauty." It is difficult to find a country with a greater variety of reliefs: from high mountains and deep canyons, through vast plains, fast rivers, and picturesque lakes to a scenic coast - all this alternates in incredible harmony. Additionally, Montenegro is exceptionally proud of its rich history and tradition and its natural heritage, which it strives to preserve and present to visitors from all over the world. Since 1991, it has officially held the title of the first ecological country in the world.

Thanks to its significant physical and geographical differences, Montenegro stands out as one of the most attractive tourist destinations in the Mediterranean and Europe. Tourism is flourishing as a vital economic branch, especially in the field of rural tourism, which has significantly increased in the last few years.

This is partly due to the fact that this country has a pleasant climate, similar to that of Sardinia, the Cote d'Azur, or Majorca, making it a perfect destination for a summer holiday. In contrast, mountain regions offer excellent conditions for winter sports, especially Durmitor, Bjelasica, and Prokletije, with stable snow cover at high altitudes lasting at least 80 to 90 days.

With its unique Adriatic coast, beautiful lakes, five national parks, and imposing mountains, Montenegro is a desirable destination for those looking to enjoy nature, local (organic) products, and experiences offered by rural tourism. The offer is diverse, with climatically and structurally different types of rural tourism: coastal in the southern part, continental in the central region, and mountainous in the northern part of the country.

All regions, with their natural and cultural values, attract numerous visitors. Tourists, far from the city crowd, enjoy the peace and pleasure provided by nature, rural households, healthy life, traditional cuisine, and preserved customs and traditions. Visitors to rural areas can expect a warm welcome, as Montenegrins, like other peoples of the Balkans, are famous for their hospitality and kindness.

Visiting Montenegro means encountering diverse natural beauty and human warmth, which vows to create impressive memories. Rural tourism offers an authentic experience of returning to natural environments and a life that differs in many ways from the one we mostly have in urban areas. This brochure is a glimpse into just such a way of life and an invitation to experience it briefly.

NORTHERN REGION

Speaking of rural tourism, it should be emphasized that it is the most developed in the northern region of Montenegro. The relief of this part of the country is very dynamic and concise. It is characterized by colorful caves, magnificent canyons, hidden lakes, dense forests, untouched rainforests, and most of all, steep, rocky mountains, whose peaks are sometimes covered with snow even in the summer months.

Unique rural households and numerous accommodation facilities dedicated to rural tourism await you in the north of Montenegro. Montenegrin villages live, and their population is actively engaged in agriculture, animal husbandry, and, increasingly, rural tourism. Villages are located in valleys and plateaus, but also on mountains and at their foothills, surrounded by meadows and pastures or dense forests. It is an incredible fact that more than 90% of the surface of this area is above 1,000 m above sea level.

The tourist offer in the north varies depending on the relief and altitude characteristics. However, some features are common to all Montenegrin villages. In addition to natural beauty, visitors can also expect well-preserved traditional architecture characterized by smaller houses designed to withstand intense and long winters. They are primarily wooden and stone houses with sharp, low, and steep roofs that keep warm in the winter months and cool in the summer. In this environment, imbued with clean mountain air, the appetite is naturally whetted, so tasting juicy traditional dishes is an unavoidable part of the visit. Here, you will feel the hospitality and friendliness of the local population, happy to share their mountain way of life with visitors. It is the life of hard-working and strong people, healthy like the fragrant mountain herbs of their meadows and from which they will make you the most beautiful, medicinal tea. Intoxicated by the fresh air, while it's cold outside and you are snuggled up in the warmest blankets, you fall into the sweetest sleep at the end of the day.

The four most famous natural monuments of the northern region testify to its untouched nature. Durmitor, one of the main tourist attractions of Montenegro and a National Park under the protection of UNESCO leaves you breathless with its beauty and uniqueness. This mountain massif is home to dense coniferous forests and 18 glacial lakes, known as "mountain eyes." The largest among them is Crno jezero/ Black Lake, but other lakes are no less impressive. By visiting any part of Durmitor, you will see why songs are written about it and why its landscapes inspire artists.

On the northern side, it is surrounded by the Tara River Canyon, the deepest canyon in Europe and the second deepest in the world. Tara has been declared the "Tear of Europe" because of its crystal clear water. This untamed mountain river attracts fans of adventure sports as it offers one of the most exciting rafting experiences on our continent. In contrast, its quieter parts are favorite spots for passionate anglers.

Prokletije National Park, another one of the many natural treasures of this country, is a mountain massif with a characteristic appearance and numerous sharp and steep peaks. It is ideal for hiking, bird watching, and enjoying the untouched wilderness.

Finally, we also recommend the Biogradska gora National Park, in the heart of which is the lake of the same name. This, the largest mountain lake in Montenegro, is a fairytale emerald color and is surrounded by one of the three remaining rainforests in Europe.

"Katun Laništa" of the Bogavac family is located on the Bjelasica pass, on the border of Biogradska Gora. The hiking trail (Biogradsko Lake - Laništa - Bjelojevići - Mojkovac) passes through the katun. In the spring, roe deer and hinds take their newly born fawns to graze below the upper border of the forest, and above this katun. That is why shepherds named the katun – Lanište (after a fawn – lane).

This rural household, which is primarily engaged in agriculture and livestock breeding, consists of a family house and several buildings (bungalows and cottages) for the accommodation of tourists. As part of the household, there is also an ethnic tasting room, as well as the facilities for housing animals, a garden and an orchard.

The visitors to this rural household can participate in the usual farm jobs during their stay – working in the field and orchard, taking care of animals, etc.

Katun Bindža

CENTRAL REGION

The central part of Montenegro primarily consists of the capital Podgorica, Lake Skadar, and the cultural and historical capital of Cetinje, the city of rock and roll Nikšić, as well as the fairy-tale town of Danilovgrad.

The central region is the border between the north and the south of Montenegro, between the mountains and the sea, but it is much more than that. It has borrowed the better of the other two regions, so the Montenegrin villages in the continental part are somewhat reminiscent of the coastal ones and slightly reminiscent of the villages from the north of Montenegro.

That is why more attention is being paid to rural tourism in this region, and the visitors, to their mutual satisfaction, recognize this. Staying in the villages of these regions, you will encounter olive growing, viticulture, beekeeping, animal husbandry, and agriculture. Rich cultural and historical heritage, natural resources, excellent tastes and smells of Montenegrin cuisine, and talkative and friendly people will welcome you.

Due to its position, well-balanced relief, and Mediterranean-continental climate, vines, olives, figs, pomegranates, and watermelons, all plants suitable for a warm climate are grown in the surroundings of Podgorica. The largest Montenegrin wine producer, as well as many smaller wineries, are located precisely in the continental part of the country (in the vicinity of Podgorica and the fishing villages of Virpazar and Rijeka Crnojevića). Just a few kilometers from the capital and even its center, there are numerous households engaged in agriculture and animal husbandry. All this is supported by large and small rivers that cut through the unusually flat relief in our rugged country.

When we talk about the central region, it is essential to mention the history that dates back centuries. Namely, the Crvena stijena Cave near Nikšić is a prehistoric site. More precisely, tools, and weapons, sacral objects, and jewelry from the Middle Paleolithic were found in it. Almost 6 km from the center of Podgorica are the remains of the ancient Roman city of Duklja.

The Old Royal Capital Cetinje, located at the foot of mountainous Lovćen, is a treasure trove of Montenegrin culture and history that is a serious candidate for UNESCO protection. The essential cultural and natural heritage of this region are certainly two national parks. Famous for its forest reserves and Njegoš's Mausoleum, Lovćen National Park rises above the Adriatic Sea in the hinterland of the Bay of Kotor. It is also known for the viewpoints from which the view extends to the sea, Lake Skadar, and the high mountains to the north. The unique beauty of the central region is also reflected in Lake Skadar, the largest bird reserve in Europe. The lake has a number of outstanding beaches, no less charming than those on the sea, which, during the summer, attract tourists from all over.

We also recommend a visit to the city of rock and roll, festivals, poets, bohemians, beer, and, at the same time, one of the largest municipalities - Nikšić. This student town is an ideal place for walks, relaxation, and enjoyment, and the promenade around the nearby Krupac Lake is stunning. Nikšić is watched over by the green hill of Trebjesa but also by ramparts believed to be from the Roman era, while in its core rest the famous medieval stećci.

All the mentioned cultural and historical elements of this region, imbued with the natural, but also the openness and special humor of its population, promise that whichever home you choose - you won't go wrong! Your hosts from the central region will make sure to welcome you as a member of the family but also to show you their life and environment most beautifully and authentically.

SOUTHERN REGION

“At the birth of the planet, the most beautiful encounter between land and sea must have been on the Montenegrin coast.” This is what the English poet Lord Byron wrote, and two centuries later, we proudly claim that his words are just as valid.

The Adriatic Sea, the jewel of the Mediterranean that connects the Apennines and Balkan peninsulas, adorns the Montenegrin coast with its warm and clear waters. Our coastline, which includes eight natural and artificial islands, stretches for as much as 293.5km. Along the coast are beautiful towns and villages, intertwined with numerous beaches that tell stories of ancient times and modern vacations.

The beaches are famous for their beauty, diversity, and healing effect. In the summer, the coast is the center of entertainment, artistic and cultural events. However, if you want to stay by the sea but prefer to avoid the crowds and urban lifestyle, seaside villages are the right choice for you. Villages in the southern region are characterized by stone houses tucked into coves or hills. Hidden away, they represent a true paradise for tourists, especially those who want a peaceful family vacation, local organic food, and fabulous sunsets.

Staying in these villages, you can get to know traditional Mediterranean cuisine, olive growing, and viticulture. You can get to know the traditions of Montenegrin villages, which are still well preserved. It goes without saying that hospitable hosts await you and will gladly open their doors to you. They will tell you the stories of their regions, whisper an agricultural or olive-growing trick, maybe even a fishing secret. It will tickle your senses with delicious rushtulas (traditional pastry), fragrant citrus fruits, juicy wines, pashicada (beef dish) with macaroons, and, of course, excellent olive oil.

Although the Mediterranean climate allows visiting throughout the year, it is recommended to visit these villages at the end of August. The reason lies in the fact that this is the time of ripening of many fruit-growing and viticultural varieties, so the nature and everything that it brings to this region will be portrayed to you.

The vivid contrast between the crystal-clear water of the Adriatic and the sharp rocky Dinaric mountains is what makes our coastline one of the most beautiful in the world. Numerous sandy beaches, inlets and bays, Mediterranean and tropical plants, pine trees, olive groves, and towns along the coast contribute to that unique charm. The southern region has always been attractive, and centuries ago, many dynasties left their cultural, sacred, and artistic imprint on it, which is still being inherited today. What has always belonged to it alone, unchanged, and unique is nature. Sea waves, mountains that rise high and are mirrored in the blue of the Adriatic Sea, sandy beaches, conifers, fruits, vegetables, and fauna. All that, together with the locals, makes this part of Montenegro genuinely unique and attractive, both in the summer months and throughout the year.

"Čelanovića mlin" rural household is located in the village of Kavač, on the old road between Tivat and Kotor, on the slopes of the hill Vrmac on the Tivat side of the bay. The Čelanović family is traditionally engaged in olive growing. In their family mill olives are processed and olive oil is produced.

They have their own garden where they grow vegetables, as well as an orchard from where they pick fruits for production of juices and jams. They make various homemade aromatic rakija and liqueurs, olive oil soaps with different aromas, olive wood souvenirs, etc. as well. They also prepare homemade traditional dishes for their guests.

Near the household there is a hiking trail called Vrmac which is also suitable for cycling.

Museum Dragine is a unique rural household that also owns its museum. This ethno museum was created to preserve and share the rich tradition and culture of the region and initially consisted of a collection of family items up to 130 years old. Later, the collection was supplemented by donations from the local community, and some of these items are up to two centuries old.

Along with experiencing authentic village life and tasting the local cuisine, there are various activities in Draginje for maximum enjoyment in the rural environment: nature walks, tasting local products, meeting and feeding domestic animals, walking through the garden, and picking fruits or vegetables, cycling and workshops for children. The hosts will warmly welcome you with a cup of homemade coffee and baklava, and you can spend your evenings under the starry sky with the warmth of the fire in the beautifully landscaped yard next to the stone house.
